Program Description

A core service offered is a mental health assessment. The evaluation responds to the request for diagnostic information and psychometric data. As a general practice, the assessment includes the evaluation of emotional, mental health; learning disability, cognitive, academic achievement; and adaptive, functional estimates, and vocational functioning.

• Functional Assessment Estimates

For purposes of job placement and overall rehabilitation planning, it is useful to assess social and occupational disability to track progress that is independent of the severity of the psychological symptoms. The Social and Occupational Functioning Assessment Scale (SOFAS) listed in the DSM-Axis V, which is similar to the Global Assessment of Functioning (GAF), focuses on the individual's level of social and occupational functioning. The SOFAS is not directly influenced by the over severity of psychological symptoms. The SOFAS score is used to rate functioning at the time of the evaluation and is an excellent measurement to successfully use with job placement planning. The functional assessment will address areas of functioning that may interfere with finding and keeping a job. The clinical impression of functional estimates in the areas of Mobility, Communication, Self-care, Self-direction, Interpersonal skills, Social acceptance, Work skills, Work history, and Work tolerance, will be offered.

- Vocational Assessment

Vocation interest, as presented during the diagnostic interview and through psychometric instruments, will be part of the comprehensive evaluation. In order to assess career orientation, the Career Inventory System will be used. This system requests ranking and responses to various questions related to job values, abilities, future plans and interests. The job values will address the relative importance that the client gives to various job characteristics and the effort he or she is willing to invest to achieve goal. Job values and particular interests will also be identified in the vocational directions of clerical, art, business, crafts, business and science.
